FOREWORD

Careful thinkers will realize that there is much similarity between the erection of a new building and the life of a student. Just as contractors want to construct strong, attractive buildings, students desire to develop healthy, inquiring minds in order to build a wise and loyal citizenry. Pupils create the foundation of such building as they work and play together in Elementary School. In Junior High these same students erect the framework of learning which must serve them the rest of their lives. Senior High affords young people opportunities for completing the construction of their high school education and for adding a new wing — the preparation for college or for an immediate job after graduation. Then, too, as the workmen build brick by brick, so students build year by year for a strong and better tomorrow. Once the edifice stands, however, work on it does not cease, for custodians must labor constantly to keep it in good repair. So, too, the life of a real student does not end with his graduation; instead, he must continue through his lifetime to learn to solve problems of his own life and of the world. When all students, everywhere, learn to work and build together, they will have taken a great step towards a world at peace. For these reasons, then, we have chosen "Together We Build" as the theme for this 1958 Edition of SCOPE.

DEDICATION

Mr. McCarty, the staff takes great pleasure in dedicating the 1958 Edition of SCOPE to you not only as a teacher but also as a builder of character in the young people with whom you work. Throughout your eighteen years of teaching in Gasport and Middleport, you have been an inspiration and an example for us to follow on our way to becoming good and useful citizens.

At one time or another, either in the Mathematics Department or for individual guidance, we have all come to know you during our life in RHCS. Everyone of us looks forward to our Senior Year when you will be our Class Adviser. We know that you always have time to listen to our problems and to help us find solutions to them. You have gained our respect and our admiration and, at the same time, that of the faculty members and the community as well.

Since 1948 you have been adviser for each ensuing Senior Class. In this capacity you have sacrificed most of your own Easter vacations in order that Seniors might have their wonderful trips to New York. We realize, however, that this task has meant far more than the mere giving up of your holidays. We know such a trip requires, in addition, that you devote many long hours and much real energy beforehand to make arrangements for the journey. All of these tasks you perform in addition to your classroom teaching. You also serve on several committees in RHCS and assist us, too, with our Senior Ball, Moving Up Day, and Commencement Program.

Thank you, then, Prof, for all you do — both as our teacher and as our friend — to help us add the finishing touches to the building of our High School careers. It is an honor, a pleasure, and a joy to dedicate this 1958 Edition of SCOPE to you!

F. KARL FROHLICH, District Superintendent

FAREWELL TO YOU, MR. FROHLICH

Loyal citizen, superior schoolman, understanding friend;
Whenever anyone needed guidance, a helping hand you'd lend.

With thirty-eight years at Roy-Hart of service, faithful and true;
It seems a little hard for us to bid farewell to you.

The years will pass by as they always do,
And times will change, which is also true;
But one thing's for sure and sincere this is, too,
We at Roy-Hart won't forget you!

Cynthia Grinnell

FACULTY

The Faculty both as a group and as individuals, labor earnestly to help build scholarship, character, personality, and leadership.

BOARD OF EDUCATION

Overseeing the construction of one school building is a sizable task but supervising the erection of two buildings simultaneously would seem an impossible job to most people. Roy-Hart's Board of Education, however, was not daunted by the responsibility. When the details involved could no longer be handled in their regular monthly meetings, the Board members unselfishly came together every week to carry on their work.

Besides keeping one jump ahead of the contractors, the Board had to execute its usual duties of prescribing courses of studies, appointing employees, regulating expenditures, and considering problems relating to the school and the community.

Yes, the Board of Education has performed a tremendous task this year and it has performed this task well. Aware of this, Roy-Hart students are grateful to these men. Each man on the Board, the students feel, is really a builder — a builder of the future of America!

As builders construct foundation, walls, and roof of a building, so teachers mold the mind, character and future of students. To do their job well faculty members, too, need recreation. With this in mind, the Teachers' Association planned a fall picnic, a Christmas party, and a spring luncheon. The group highlighted the year's social functions with a farewell party for Mr. Karl Frohlich. In a more serious vein, the Association held meetings to study various aspects of teaching and to discuss pending legislation involving teachers. The group also sent a representative to the House of Delegates in Syracuse. Through these activities, the Teachers' Association serves as a tool to build stronger relationships between teachers and students, teachers and parents, and teachers and administration.

SENIOR HIGH SCHOOL

In construction work the architect's plan appears first; then, the actual building commences; and finally, an edifice stands in its completed form. Likewise, Senior High School students plan, build and complete their program of education. First they examine courses of study offered by students and choose the one for which they seem best fitted. Then, working with classmates and teachers, they build a solid foundation of learning by studying the required and elective subjects for the course they have selected.

Frequently they take a variety of standardized tests to determine their individual interests and aptitudes. Such tests are helpful both to those who seek immediate employment after graduation and to those who intend to further their education in institutions of higher learning. In the closing days of their High School career students complete the work in their courses and receive a diploma to prove they have met graduation requirements.

To provide opportunities for each person to lead a well balanced life and to develop an interest in an avocation, pupils participate in extracurricular activities such as clubs and sports.

Thus, through working together in both curricular and extracurricular situations, High School students not only build strong foundations of learning but also develop valuable traits of character, the desire to serve others, and the hope of achieving some measure of success after leaving RHCS.

JUNIOR HIGH

In Junior High School, students strengthen the foundations of knowledge, character, and personality laid in Elementary School. In fact, at this level, students actually lay the corner stone for the building of their whole life, for it is at this point that youngsters have opportunities to learn to use well the instruments of education. Here, too, through guidance, they gain insight into their High School Courses. They explore fields of interest and have opportunities to assume responsibility, to acquire independence, and to develop good habits of study.

Besides their prescribed courses of study, which are designed to help Junior High boys and girls learn to use the tools of education skillfully, these young people take part in a variety of extracurricular activities and social functions. They learn to work both individually and as a group. Through campaigning for offices, holding elections, and conducting class meetings, they also become familiar with the democratic processes of government.

Thus, through guiding its students in studying together, working together, and living together, the Junior High School Program helps build sturdy school citizens who are ready to enter their High School years with a burning desire to acquire greater knowledge in order that in their adulthood they may take an active part in the continual growth and development of the American way of life.

ELEMENTARY GRADES

Just as the chief aim of the contractor is the erection of a beautiful building, the principal aim of the Elementary Grade is the development of a good mind in a healthy body.

Grade children lay the foundation for their education in Kindergarten where they develop a spirit of cooperation through working and playing together. They strengthen this foundation as they progress through the grades where they gain a fundamental knowledge of the three R's and learn to apply these skills to everyday living. Each individual grows according to his own abilities and develops his own particular interests. He learns respect for others and builds a firm base on which to construct a strong character and a pleasant personality. In addition, the child learns to strive continually for better mental and physical health habits.

So that these young people of today may become good citizens of tomorrow, they acquire a knowledge of their community and of the world. They learn about local and world wide problems and how they can best be solved.

Thus, through working, studying and playing, the students construct the basic framework of the knowledge, character, interests and habits which they will carry through their lifetime. Having built a strong foundation through the Elementary School, these youngsters are ready to undertake the next step in the construction of their education — Junior High.

ENGLISH

Schools need frequent, meaningful projects for nervous students, and my school needs courses for enabling students to take their place in the outside world. For this reason, English teachers at BHCS strive to maintain a developmental language arts program designed to create a love of literature, to improve writing standards, to afford opportunities for speaking, and to promote good listening. Every speech, peace or war, can result from poor communications, it is vital that the English Department help BHCS students develop their abilities to read, write, speak, and listen with real understanding.

CITIZENSHIP EDUCATION

No building is stronger than its foundation, similarly, a country's strength lies in the foundation of knowledge and understanding of its citizens for local, state, federal and world affairs - both past and present. In a world BHCS students this background is the aim of the Citizenship Education Department. In Seventh Grade pupils study New York State while in Eighth Grade they learn American History. Ninth Grades concentrate on the Economic World, and Tenth Grades delve into World History. Juniors and Seniors make a more prolonged and detailed study of American History.

Virginia Seward

Students do reference work for career books.

Ronnie and Gerald give an illustrated talk.

Peter proves a theorem in Plane Geometry.

Greg, Brian and Frances solve percentage problems.

MATHEMATICS

Mathematical computation is the basis of all building construction just as it is a fundamental requirement for nearly every occupation or profession today. In RHCS all pupils must take mathematics courses in Grades Seven, Eight, and Nine. After completing Tenth Grade students elect whether or not they will continue to register for the more advanced courses. The study of mathematics develops good habits of logic and reasoning. For that reason and because of present world conditions, RHCS students show an increasing interest in the study of courses offered by this Department.

Beverly Reed

SCIENCE

"Oh! Look! What's that thing in the sky?" Yes, you guessed it! RHCS has just launched its first satellite. The Science Department supplies students with a better understanding of life and the forces of the universe. RHCS pupils, from Elementary Grades through Senior High, study science. Every Freshman must take general science and Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors may elect biology, physics, and even strive to earn a science major. In RHCS several of these "majors" hope to continue their scientific training that they may help build a safer, healthier, and happier world.

Evelyn Braun

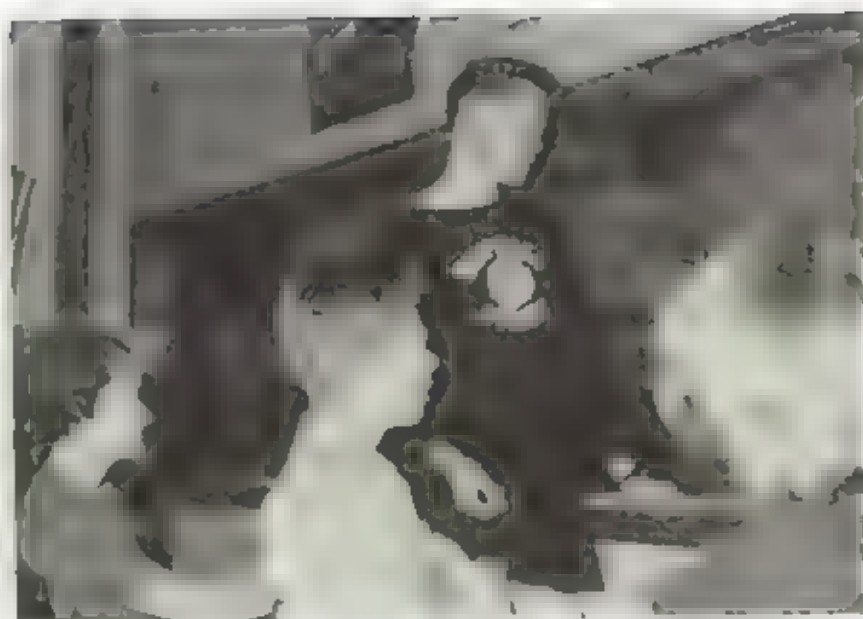

Millie and Connie work in chemistry lab.

Biology students examine microscopic specimens.

Robert Jackson displays a card used in French

Johnny Hangaas explains similarity of words

LANGUAGE

Studying foreign languages is like erecting a building; once you have a good foundation, the rest is easy. BHCS students may study both Latin and French. Latin basis of the Romance Languages serves as a good background for future studies and aids in vocabulary growth. Students in French classes have the satisfaction of learning a living language and of studying about life in France. In these days of world unrest, more students should realize that linguists are as essential to helping reconcile the differences between nations as architects are necessary for the building industry.

Marv LesVeaux

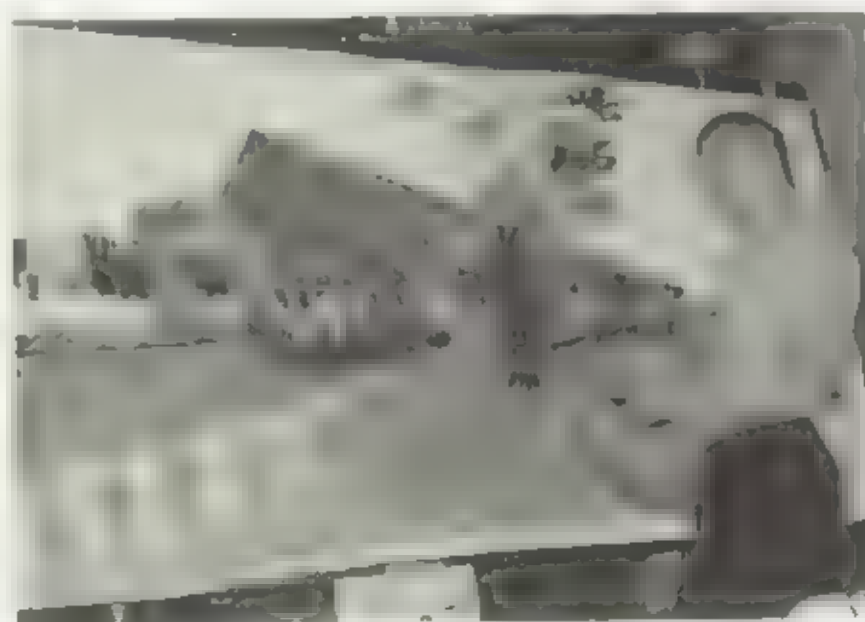

ART

Art is as essential in modern school curricula as a blueprint to an architect, therefore BHCS offers its students a well rounded art program. In Junior High, art is a required subject while in Senior High it is an elective. Sculpture, graphics, photography, and painting are but a few of the courses students may pursue. Each of them provides opportunities for expression and creativeness. Since life without an appreciation of art would be as dull as a new building before the decorators "take over", BHCS students receive every encouragement to enroll in the Art Department.

BUSINESS

"Good Morning, High School." Thus answers the business student operating the switchboard as she connects the building contractor with Mr. Porter's office. In the Business Department, which trains people for positions in offices in any field of work, students' commitments of the subject to study and to put these commitments into actual practice. About sixty-five per cent of the Senior High enrollment studies at least one business course. The Department offers both Stenographic and General Business Major diplomas. The program consists of ten different subjects, some of which are electives for College Entrance Majors.

Sylvia Swick

HOME ECONOMICS

Girls in the Home Economics Department learn to supervise the building, decorating, and furnishing of a home just as carefully as Mr. Porter had to supervise the matters for the new schools. In this Department, the girls grow as new adults; they also become better members of the family group. They study sewing, cooking, home management, personality development, and first aid. All Junior High girls take Homemaking, while in Senior High it becomes an elective. Through experiences in the Home Economics Department, RHCS girls prepare themselves well for their roles as future homemakers.

Alice Ranney

Miss Clarke's girls refinish furniture.

Girls learn the fundamentals of sewing

Ag boys learn to keep careful records.

Gary and Jim demonstrate testing of milk

AGRICULTURE

Like successful contractors, good farmers must be versatile enough to handle just any kind of work. To train prospective farmers for proficiency in their many tasks is the aim of the Agriculture Department. The Ag Course consists of both vocational and non-vocational groups. Students who intend to become farmers study the vocational course while those interested in agriculture but not as a career take the non-vocational program. In both sections the fellows conduct experiments and demonstrations like bee trips and hen worth while lessons. Thus the prosperous farmer of tomorrow gets his start today!

Barbara Schilling

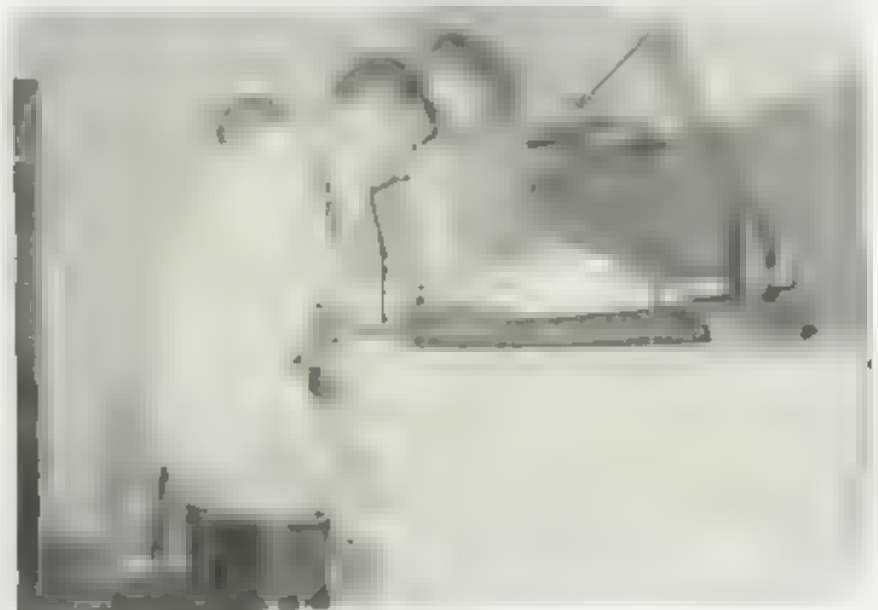

INDUSTRIAL ARTS

Some of the fellows in the Industrial Arts Department are almost as clever as the electricians who are wiring the new Elementary Building. All Junior High boys study in this Department but the program becomes more active in Senior High. They study mechanical drawing, transportation shop, electricity, or woodwork. With in these fields the students plan and construct projects according to their individual interests and abilities. In addition they read, observe, and discuss matters of local or necessity. Nearly two hundred and fifty boys studied courses in the Industrial Arts Department this year!

Karen Snell

Mr. Querns supervises Dick and Bob's repair job

Mr. Smugor helps Allen in Mechanical Drawing

Mike and Marcia search for college information.

Students look for material for their project

LIBRARY

Mrs. Bunnell, since seeing the blueprints for the new schools I have thought of being an architect. "Have you any books about architecture?" So it goes all day in the Library. Here in cooperation with the English Department classes meet regularly to learn proper uses of the Library and its aids. Roy Hart's Library contains a special collection of books and magazines for student use. Pupils have access also to reference books, occupational information, and college catalogues. Yes, indeed there is a wealth of material in the Library for every department in RHCS.

Linda Spahn

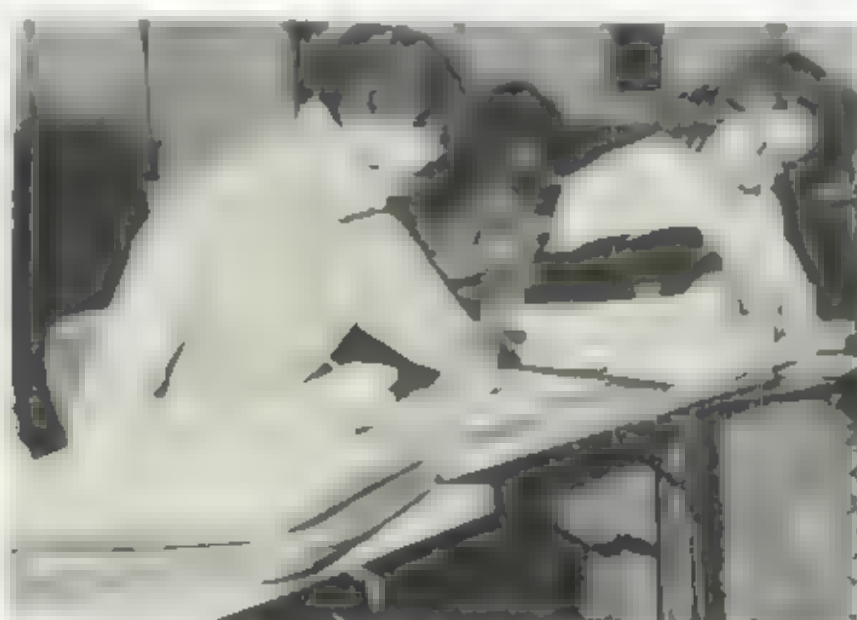

STUDENT COUNSELOR

Certainly as much planning should go into the building of the careers of young people as goes into the erecting of a building. Such planning is one of the functions of Roy Hart's Student Counselor. Another is to help students know and understand themselves better. To this end, pupils take a number of standardized tests which he selects, supervises, and interprets for them. In addition, the Counselor welcomes the student to come to him for help with their problems whenever these problems concern the pupils' present courses or their plans for the future.

JoAnn Szell

Wayne, Jean and Bob take the peg-board test.

Karen and Ann plot their Iowa Test scores

Mr. Cavers instructs Paul and Richard for band.

Mixed Chorus boys go into their minstrel routine

MUSIC

Everyone loves music! Listen to the men sing as they work on the new school!! And hear the tunes from the Music Room!! Is it the regular band or the new dance band rehearsing? Or is someone having the individual lesson band members receive weekly besides their group practice? Oh, I know! It is one of the vocal classes from the Elementary Grades or Junior High. Or could it be one of the Senior High groups preparing for a concert, operetta, or minstrel show? Well, whichever it is, it certainly sounds great!

Roxann Thompson

DRIVER TRAINING

"Aren't those children lucky to be moving into a building like that?" Such comments flow freely as occupants of the Driver Training car drive past. Students in this Department learn how to drive, change tires, and care for a car properly. They also develop an understanding of highway courtesy. The course is a year-long elective for students who are at least sixteen years old. If class members pass their driver's test and have an average of eighty-five, they earn a card permitting them to secure a senior operator's license at seventeen.

Elizabeth Braun

Mr. Foley shows Joan and Bruce the engine.

Mr. Pacini's class starts its daily practice

Dr. Williams examines Linda for annual check-up

Miss Andress carefully cleans Carol's teeth

HEALTH

School children must be as healthy as a construction crew; therefore, the Health Department cooperates with students, parents, and teachers to promote good health. All students have annual physical examinations, vision screening tests, and hearing tests. If they need emergency care, they receive approved first aid treatment. Children may also have the benefits of immunization clinics and polio shots. The Dental Hygienist instructs grade youngsters in good dental practices in addition to cleaning and inspecting teeth for all Roy-Hart students. Besides these many services, the Health Department also keeps cumulative health records for every student.

Phyllis Pease

PHYSICAL EDUCATION

It is as exciting to see a body grow strong as it is to watch a beautiful building take shape; therefore, children have physical education throughout their thirteen years in RHCS. The aims of the Department are to build strong bodies by teaching muscular coordination and agility and to present a well-rounded program through which students gain a basic knowledge of athletics. In addition they learn fundamentals of basketball, tennis, badminton, and many other games. Under such a program, students gradually build strong bodies which in turn help build strong minds.

Because the public wants to be informed it is necessary, periodically, for contractors to release press reports concerning the progress of the constructions for which they are responsible. For the same reason, Press Club furnishes the public with timely accounts of RHCS activities. To execute this function Club members publish SCOPE and ECHO. For these publications they gather news, plan layouts, prepare write-ups, take pictures, and type and assemble material. For their own enjoyment members of the group journeyed to Rochester this year to visit Eastman Kodak Company and Eastman House. Although Press Clubbers work exceedingly hard serving RHCS and the community, their work is not in vain for they gain knowledge, enjoyment, and satisfaction from their labors.

FTA members can hardly wait until they can perform their "teacherette" duties in the new Elementary School. This Club, which encourages young persons to elect teaching as a career, gives its members opportunities to explore the field, discover their own aptitudes for the profession, and perform services for faculty and students of Roy Hart. Members help teachers in the grade or department in which they want to become instructors. At their meetings, they see films for teachers and hear speakers discuss the profession. They also have annual field trips to nearby State Teachers Colleges. It is the hope of FTA that some of the present Club personnel will soon become full fledged members of the RHCS faculty!

GIRLS BUILD FOR HOMES OF TOMORROW

President EVELYN SILSBY
 Vice President CAROLE LASAL
 Secretary BILLIE SUE NIEMAN
 Treasurer NANCY RANNEY

The FFA helps mold the minds, character, and personalities of tomorrow's homemakers just as carefully as an architect designs the best possible plans for his buildings. Through the activities in this Club, its members learn new and improved methods of executing the duties of future homemakers. In this manner FFA lays the groundwork for homes of tomorrow. This year forty-two girls joined the Club. To exchange ideas with members in other FFA Chapters, these girls attended the Fall Rally at Alden. Before Christmas in order to help defray some of their expenses, they sold nuts. They also entertained FFA Chapters from neighboring schools, served the Girl Scouts' Dinner, had a field trip to Corning Glass Works, and heard several worth-while speakers.

GROUP CONDUCTS EXCITING CONTEST

President - - - - - CAROLE LASAL
 Vice President - - - ROBERT OWENS
 Secretary - - - ROSE MARIE TREMBLAY
 Treasurer - - - SHARON O'DONNELL

In the same manner that men helping to build any public structure work for the betterment of the local community, members of Junior Red Cross help to improve conditions in the community-at large. This year the group conducted a "Miss RIICS Contest" for its enrollment drive. To enroll in Junior Red Cross and, at the same time, cast votes for the lucky girl, students contributed pennies. The spirit of giving is, of course, the byword of this organization. Members arranged for a choir to entertain at Veterans' Hospital in Buffalo and sponsored both the Good Will and March of Dimes drives. Certainly members of no other group in RIICS give as much of their time and energy for the benefit of others as do the people in Junior Red Cross.

Any type of building program requires wise leadership and in RHCS such leadership comes from the Student Council. Annually each class elects two members to this group. These persons, plus the vice presidents of the classes, make up the Council. It is one function of this organization to schedule and regulate the activities for all clubs and classes. This year Council members also completed successfully the exchange student program it launched in '56-'57. In addition they sponsored a dance for Johnny Hangaas, Roy-Hart's first exchange student, that he might meet teachers and students. The Council also lends money to various clubs to help them carry out worth-while projects. As always, a highlight of the Council members' year came when they had the honor of sponsoring the Awards Assembly.

PHOTOGRAPHERS SNAP LOCAL SCENES

President - - - - RONALD GOLDING
 Vice-President - - - EDWARD SCHULTZ
 Secretary - - - - - HELEN BURNER

Photography Club members had a field day during construction of the new school buildings as they snapped pictures of the day-by-day progress of the workers. The young people in this organization study rudiments of taking pictures and of developing and printing them. Each Club member owns a camera and learns to handle it efficiently. In addition to regular meetings, the photographers enjoy several field trips on which they snap pictures of places of interest in Niagara County. Members of the group also try to record life in RHCS. Both SCOPE and ECHO use some of these school snaps. Thus Photography Club members, through developing their hobby, not only learn to live a more well-rounded life but also perform a service for Roy-Hart as well.

LEADERS SET EXAMPLE OF SAFETY

Fire Chief - - - - - GARY FINK
Assistant Fire Chief - - RICHARD TRIPP
Secretary-Treasurer - JOHNNY HANGAAS

Construction workers, with their constant practice of safety, set examples for the Firewardens to follow to promote safety in RIICS. In turn, so that panic will be avoided in case of emergency, the student body should follow the examples of the Firewardens. While the chief duty of this group is to direct fire drills, its members have many additional responsibilities. They conduct students to and from assemblies, study fire control methods, supervise air raid drills, keep the school free from fire hazards, and employ safety measures wherever they are needed. This year the boys also painted aisles on the gymnasium bleachers to guide people looking for places to sit. To make up the personnel of the Firewardens the Juniors and Seniors elect ten representatives to the group while the Freshmen and Sophomores elect eight.

Just as RIICS School District members promote growth of good citizens by providing fine new buildings for grade children, so National Honor Society members encourage development of scholarship, leadership, character, and service at Roy-Hart. At an impressive ceremony, they initiated new members in the fall and honored these persons at a luncheon. The local group also initiated members of the newly-formed Newfane Chapter and participated in social gatherings with both Newfane and Albion Chapters. In their own meetings the students discussed ways of stimulating scholarship and heard several inspiring lecturers. In addition, the group sponsored the Honor Awards Assembly. Although National Honor Society has existed only a relatively short time, it is already making its influence felt in RIICS. Congratulations, students, for a good job, well done.

When Future Farmers set up the exhibits for their annual Harvest Show, they display many of the talents of members of a construction crew erecting a scaffolding. The activities of this club, which meets once a month, are many. The boys participate in judging contests at Rochester Fruit Show; they also take part in Farm and Home Days at the Farm and Home Center in Lockport, view the Poultry Show in Rochester, visit the Machinery Show in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania, and attend the State Fair at Syracuse. Participation in such experiences develops agricultural leadership, good citizenship, and a cooperative spirit in the boys and provides a great deal of enjoyment for them as well.

Did you say you need someone to repair your projector before you can see your slides of the laying of the corner stone of the Gasport Building? Then you want an AV man, he will help you! Because members of Audio-Visual Club must possess great dependability, the group admits new personnel only by invitation and restricts this membership to boys in Senior High. Club members learn the care and operation of all Roy Hart's audio-visual equipment in order that they may use the machines in the classrooms when teachers request such assistance. The young men also perform these tasks for churches, industries, and fraternal organizations in the community. In every sense of the word, then, Audio-Visual is truly a "service" organization.

LETTERMEN WIN TOP ATHLETIC HONORS

President RICHARD TRIPP
Vice-President JOHN WALKER
Secretary CHARLES ALLPORT
Treasurer ROBERT SHAW

The administration employed only top men in their fields for erecting the new Roy-Hart schools. Just so, Varsity Club invites only top athletes of RIICS into its membership, for all Club members must possess their varsity letter. These boys pledge to grow in integrity and sportsmanship themselves and to foster a better understanding of all athletic events among the students. The "lettermen" usher at basketball games, conduct the Sports King and Queen Contest, sponsor the Sports Dance, and sell candy at games. True, Varsity Club is comparatively a new organization in Roy-Hart; however, its members have already climbed several rungs on the ladder of success. They have achieved the goal of every boy in Grade School and have won the admiration and respect of the entire student body.

THESPIANS DEVELOP THEATRICAL KNOW HOW

President - - - - - FRANCES HYDE
 Vice President - - - FLORENCE CZELUSTA
 Secretary - - - - - BARBARA SCHILLING
 Treasurer - - - - - DEANNA SCHILLING

Producing a good play requires almost as much ingenuity as the construction of a modern building. Thus members of Dramatic Club must learn the "ins and outs" of the theater not only on stage but back stage as well. They have to know how to make costumes, paint scenery, arrange furniture, and gather props. To help them master the art of applying make-up they engaged a speaker from a modeling school in Buffalo. After learning these fundamentals, the young Thespians put them into practice by staging a one act play for an assembly program. Through such activities, members of Dramatic Club strive both to become better actors and actresses and also to gain a greater appreciation for the theater itself.

No one can build schoolhouses, homes or even bookshelves without tools and the same holds true for students. They, too must have proper equipment to function well. That these "tools" may be available for all students and, at the same time, to train Club personnel for the business world, Retailing Club operates THE CORNER SHOP. Here Club members sell school supplies and books, as well as articles made in other departments of RHCS. Such work contributes greatly to the business knowledge of participating students. They gain experience in purchasing, marking, and advertising merchandise as well as in cashing, selling, bookkeeping, and typing. Simultaneously, the group performs a real service to both teachers and students of RHCS. For this reason, SCOPE says a heartfelt "Thank you!" to all Retailing Club members.

Just as the painters of the interiors of the new schools must be neat and careful workers so members of Library Club must be tidy and precise in their work. This Club is open to all students interested in building a better school through having a well kept library. Members of the group help compile overdue lists, aid students in selecting books, and prepare bulletin boards and displays. For social activities they invite other library clubs for tea, go out for dinner in the spring, and end the year with a picnic. Those members of the Club who, through helping with the daily routine of library work, earn a total of one hundred points receive pins at the annual Awards Assembly.

As workmen report injuries or sickness to their foremen, RHCS students report to the Health Room when they feel ill. Here members of Future Nurses Club ask, "What may I do for you?" and "May I take your temperature?" They record their findings for the School Nurse and relieve her of other routine duties. In their meetings, the girls explore opportunities in and requirements for nursing careers. They also assist at clinics held in RHCS and visit Genesee Memorial Hospital in Rochester where they observe the life of a nurse and the techniques of caring for the sick. Such experiences not only help club members determine whether or not they themselves want to become nurses but also permit them to render many services for their fellow students.

The group, newly organized this year, now limits its membership to Junior and Senior girls. At their monthly meetings and in their work sessions, Stagecraft Clubbers learn techniques of staging dramatic and musical productions and also develop a lively spirit of cooperation. Before the architects employed by the Roy-Hart School District could qualify to practice their art, they had to have extensive training which included the study of old forms of architecture. Similarly, members of Junior Historical Society study the heritage of the past in many fields. They report on their findings to different grades and classes. Only Junior High students with a lively interest in things historical enroll in this group. Club members meet bi-monthly and also enjoy field trips during the year. Their annual attendance at the State Junior Historical Society Convention is a high feature of their year's activities. HAM OPERATORS LEARN THE TRADE

President NANCY LEWIS

Secretary-Treasurer LOWELL SILSBY

Just as workers on the new school made steady progress in their jobs, so members of Radio Club made constant progress toward their goal of learning all there is to know about radio! The boys and girls in the organization studied the basic principles of radio communication. One group in the Club's personnel learned the technical aspects of building and repairing radios and then put their knowledge into practice. Another group, looking forward to obtaining amateur radio licenses in order to go on the air as "ham" operators, studied fundamental radio techniques and the International Morse Code. Members of the Club also enjoyed a field trip to see Batavia's Sylvania Plant. Each person in Radio Club has had a wonderful opportunity of developing a hobby which can be of lifelong interest.

GARY FINK RICHARD WARNER

During basketball season, have you ever walked by the gymnasium door after school? If you have, you have seen a particular type of building — that of skill and teamwork. This kind of building certainly paid great dividends this year, for the record our boys chalked up is one that will be hard for future teams to equal. Winning first place in the Niagara Orleans league, the fellows then attained their final goal by defeating Cheektowaga in a thrilling game which won for them the Class B quarter finals. Although they lost by one point in the Bemus Point semi finals, our boys showed the same skill and teamwork they displayed all season. Hats off to a great team and the fabulous record its members gave Roy-Hart in '57-'58!

Men on the construction gang for the new schools had to work in spite of wind, snow, and rain. Similarly, the Rams practiced and played, no matter how rough the weather, to build a championship team. Medina handed the fellows their only league defeat; however, the undaunted Rams upset the favored Lewiston-Porter outfit and won the season's most decisive game. This win tied Roy Hart, Medina and Lewiston-Porter for first place in Niagara Orleans competition. As each fellow learned football, he also grew in sportsmanship, cooperation, and dependability. The result? Why, not only a championship team but also a team of champions as well!"

PURPLE RAMS REPRESENT CLASS B IN LEAGUE PLAY

Manager GEORGE BRIMMER

Baseball is another of the builders of men, both physically and morally, in the RHCS roster of sports. The 1957 Purple Rams compiled a "won three, lost seven" mark. With this record, the team tied for fifth place in league competition. Although the group lost three players because of ineligibility, the remaining fellows worked harder than ever to defeat Barker and to win the right to represent Class B in the Niagara-Orleans League. After leading most of the way, the Rams suffered a heartbreaking loss to Cheektowaga Central in the sectional play-offs. Prospects for the 1958 season appear bright and encouraging as Baseball's Purple Rams continue to work and build together!

WRESTLERS SHOW STRENGTH

Just as carpenters must know how to use their tools so must wrestlers know how to use their strength to the best advantage. This past year the Wrestling Team under the leadership of Mr. Joseph Nasal has learned this lesson well. Four members of the squad competed in the Section VI Sectionals. Tom Gormley, as team captain, and Leonard Goff and Ronald Rudnick lost first round matches to their opponents who finished in the finals. Eugene Donahue won his first two matches by pins but then lost by the same method in the quarter finals. Eugene's wins, however, enabled Rovalton Hartland to gain five points in the difficult sectional matches.

FULLER BREAKS NIAGARA-ORLEANS MILE RECORD

Each brick in a building lends strength to the structure. Similarly, the Track Team depends on each individual in its ranks to contribute to the success of the group. In April the team began practicing discus throwing, shot putting, short distance running, and high jumping for the first meet in May. After competing with Medina, Starpoint, Wilson, Akron, and Barker in the Triangular Meets, the team participated in the Niagara-Orleans Meet at Wilson where Bill Fuller broke the Niagara-Orleans mile record. The successful runners then entered the Western New York Sectionals at Dunkirk. Congratulations, fellows! We are proud of our new track because now we, for the first time, can hold meets at RHCS.

Performing their daily practice stint, Cross Country runners had ample opportunity to watch progress on the Middleport Elementary Building from every angle. At the same time the boys developed coordination, endurance, stamina, and resourcefulness in themselves. In spite of Asian Flu, which caused cancellation of three meets, Roy Hart's runners took second place in the Niagara Orleans meet and third place in the Section Six, Class B fray. Lorne LeBere won top honors for the local team when he placed first in the former contest and second in the latter. With most of the group scheduled to re-enter RHCS next September the team has an enthusiastic outlook. Good luck fellows!

LET'S GO, YOU PURPLE RAMS

Sometimes foremen have to encourage workmen: in like manner, Cheerleaders have to encourage members of Roy-Hart's teams when they find the going rough. For this purpose, their battle cry is "Let's go, you Purple Rams!" In addition to building good morale among team members, the Cheerleaders, through their own good sportsmanship, must develop enthusiasm and a sense of fair play among the student body and other spectators at sports events. For this reason, the girls sponsor pep assemblies throughout the year. At these gatherings they rehearse old cheers with the assembled group and also teach new ones they themselves have learned in their arduous weekly practice. In this manner the teams have a well organized and well rehearsed cheering section to support them at all their contests. This year, too, the girls entertained units from nearby schools at a cheerleading clinic. Thus it is that RIICS Cheerleaders may well be proud of their fine accomplishments!
